

Sun shines on Riverboat Days celebration

By CARLA WILSON and GAIL DOTINGA
Clear blue skies and hot temperatures helped make Riverboat Days a big success this past weekend.
The first event planned was an early-morning feast Saturday.
Hungry Terrace residents lined up Saturday morning outside Oterwaites for their pancake breakfast. A sizeable portion of bacon, eggs and pancakes were scooped onto each plate for only $2.

The Lions Club had a hard time keeping up with the crowd who anxiously awaited their breakfast.
A couple of hours after the breakfast Lakelse Avenue was packed with people waiting to see the Riverboat Days parade.
Colorful floats, clowns, candy, marching bands and horses paraded down Lakelse to appreciative watchers.

The local Terrace Legion's float was judged the best overall float, as well as the best decorated. The Kitimat Legion was chosen as the best walking group and the Terrace Morgan Horse Club won the best equestrian class. The rest of the results from the parade will be published Tuesday.
As soon as the parade was over, the 4600 block of Lakelse was closed and a small fair was put on.

Later in the day the Terrace Skydiver's Club put on an impressive display in Lower Little Park. Four parachutists jumped from a plane and landed in the park, trailing smoke as they came down.
After this there were games for children in the arena and the Terrace

Centennial Lions began their casino.
The casino was the busiest place of the weekend. The gambling tables were packed all evening and the beer sold in the bar was finished by the end of the night. The arena was crowded and a disc jockey played music for energetic dancers.
Water sports were part of the celebration too and on Saturday and Sunday canoe races were held.

The canoe marathon race began at Remo Bar on Saturday. The turnout for the event was high, with 30 canoes entered.
Dave Gobel and Matt Caccia came first in the men's division of the marathon. Tim Tomayer and Don Mackow came second and Doug Witala and John Schihl were third.

Rilla Middleton and Dave Pearce were the winners in the mixed division of the marathon. Bee Dalton and Stu Soward took second and Tim and Penny Newton came third.
Pat Pearce and Anne Havard were the winners in the women's marathon race. They were the only team entered in the women's division but they placed sixth overall in time. All the first place teams in the race were from Smithers.

In another event on Sunday Matt Caccia and Dave Gobel won the one-mile men's sprint canoe race. The second place winners were Tim Tomayer and Don Mackow and third place went to Ian and Dick Gordon.
In the mixed sprint Dave Gobel and Anne Havard came first. Rilla Middleton

Hit and run kills Kitimat man, 19

A hit-and-run incident near Kitimat has killed a 19-year-old man. Brian Kilgore, of 15 Nadine Street in Kitimat, was struck by a vehicle near the Hirsch Creek Bridge early Saturday morning.

The vehicle left the scene and has not been located. Police believe the incident occurred at approximately 3:30 a.m.

Kilgore was dead on arrival at Kitimat General Hospital.

RCMP are continuing their investigation. Anyone with information on the matter is asked to contact the Kitimat RCMP.

Six slain in bizarre shootings

BASSANO, Alta. (CP) — Grief-stricken parishioners of the Evangelical Free Church in this southeastern Alberta agricultural community attended regular church services Sunday, determined not to let the bizarre shooting death of their pastor diminish their spirits.

Gathered in the tiny church, about 125 kilometres southeast of Calgary, the 40-member congregation wiped tears from their eyes and many read biblical passages and prayed before the service began.

Rev. Reg Tomlinson, 59, and his wife Grace, 56, were found shot to death in the basement of their home Friday. RCMP say they were apparently shot by Irvin Levens, 55, who killed his wife, Philomena, 52, and their two children, Timothy, 15, and Liz, 12, before killing himself.

"We should not be weeping and crying for them," a woman offered in prayer. "They would want us to be rejoicing for them because they are in a better place than us."

The service was conducted by Albert Cosh who served as pastor in the community's church from 1964 to 1969.

Cpl. Fred Bickerstaff, in charge of the local RCMP detachment, said Sunday that Levens went to the house of another congregation member on the night of the slayings.

But Bickerstaff said the member and his family were away on vacation.

He said Levens shot himself with a .22-calibre rifle about 4 p.m. MDT Friday in a neighbor's motor home. He also said police now have established that the murders took place Thursday night rather than Friday, as originally reported.

The bodies of Mrs. Levens and the children were found at the Levens residence about 3 p.m. Friday and the bodies of Tomlinson and his wife were found at their home four hours later.

Bickerstaff said all five murder victims were shot Thursday night. Estimated time of their deaths was between 10 p.m. and midnight Thursday night.

ALLEN JUST A BLOWHARD

BROWNSVILLE, Tex. (AP) — Hurricane Allen defied predictions and spared Texas the deadly fury it had unleashed on the Caribbean, but still left behind flooding, blackouts and millions of dollars in property damage before limping into northern Mexico.

Allen caused no direct injuries or deaths in Texas, either as the hurricane that battered the coast or as the tropical storm that cut into the state, but it spun off tornadoes that injured about 20 people.

Two people died of heart attacks while the storm was in the area. More than 100 people had been killed in Allen's rampage through the Caribbean.

The 20 centimetres of rain that Allen brought, however, left the threat of widespread flooding. The National Weather Service issued a flood warning early today for the Texas coast from Corpus Christi to just above Brownsville and for five counties in south-central Texas near San Antonio.

Authorities told people who had been evacuated from their homes from Corpus Christi south to Brownsville not to return. Major roads were impassable because of flooding. About 200,000 people fled their homes Friday as authorities predicted Allen would match its deadly Caribbean rage with widespread destruction in Texas.

"We were very, very lucky," said Gov. Bill Clements. "There is a great difference in what we were anticipating and what we received."

"It was like a hurricane with eyes," said Neil Frank, director of the National Hurricane Centre in Miami. "Every time it threatened a populated area, there was a little zag in its track."

Earlier, at least 100 people were killed as the hurricane swept across the Caribbean, past Mexico's Yucatan Peninsula and into the Gulf. The deaths included 56 in Haiti, 16 in St. Lucia, eight in Jamaica, four in Cuba and three in the Dominican Republic. In addition, 13 people died when a helicopter crashed while carrying them from an offshore oil platform and one person was missing and feared drowned in the Dominican Republic.

Frank said a high-pressure system that had been driving the hurricane through the Gulf of Mexico weakened as Allen approached Texas, slowing its progress inland to eight kilometres an hour from 40 km-h. That in turn cut Allen's ability to maintain the 270-km-h winds at its centre, and they dropped to 174 km-h.

The hurricane was downgraded to a tropical storm Sunday as it slowed its way northwest across sparsely populated areas of Texas and into northern Mexico. The highest sustained winds were 72 km-h in a few squalls.

More than 75,000 homes along the Texas coast were without electricity Sunday night, including 15,000 in Corpus Christi, said the Central Power and Light Co.

RCMP escort fish trucks

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Newfoundland inshore fishermen are "sticking to their guns" and won't sell fish to processors seeking to reopen their plants while a strike-lockout continues, a fishermen's spokesman said today.

Max Short of the Newfoundland Fishermen, Food and Allied Workers Union said the fishermen are still boycotting fish-processing plants across the island.

A spokesman for the province's fish processors said earlier the processors would close any reopened plants if fishermen continued their boycott.

The first break in the monthlong strike-lockout came at St. Anthony Friday when RCMP escorted fish trucks through fishermen's pickets to the Fishery Products plant.

Short said a few fishermen sold fish to the plant Friday and Saturday, and he said a few plant workers are processing about 25,000 pounds of fish there today.

Short said 75 per cent of the fishermen who sold fish to the St. Anthony plant were moonlighters, not regular fishermen.

The traditional, hard-core fishermen, he said, know they must get a better price for their fish and will stick to their guns until they get it.

The union vowed Sunday to continue the strike despite moves by the processors to reopen plants.

There were angry exchanges and a few bloody noses on the picket line Sunday after the Fisheries Association of Newfoundland said it was preparing to reopen its plants in response to a move by some St. Anthony fishermen to sell to the strikebound plant there.

This car ended in a ditch by Lakelse Lake Sunday afternoon when the driver was forced to swerve to avoid a camper and a motorcycle. Drivers of the other vehicles sped off leaving this car on the edge of a steep embankment.

Bomb really bar of soap

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — A name on a passenger list — M.Soto — is the only good clue to the identity of a man who hijacked an Air Florida jet with 34 people aboard and forced it to fly to Cuba, the FBI says.

"We don't know if he was a refugee or lived here or what," a spokesman for the Miami FBI office said Sunday after the fourth hijacking of a U.S. jet to Cuba this year.

The airliner was about to land Sunday in Key West on a trip from Miami when a man told the crew he had a bomb in a small package he was carrying, said FBI agent William Nettles. Cuban authorities later said the "bomb" was actually a bar of soap, Nettles said.

The Spanish-speaking hi-jacker had come out of a rear restroom shouting, "Cuba! Cuba! Cuba!" Nettles said. A bilingual passenger interpreted the man's demands to the crew, Nettles said.

Nettles said the airline had to take the hijacker seriously.

"It looks like he had a bar of soap, but it could have been a plastic explosive," Nettles said.

The plane landed at Jose Marti Field in Havana, where the 28 other passengers and five crew members spent two hours before returning to Miami. The hijacker was taken into custody by Cuban officials, said Air Florida spokesman Robin Cohn.

REPORT FROM THE LEGISLATURE

By PREMIER BILL BENNETT

I was happy the other day to see the result of the $200 million housing initiative program introduced by us in January. It has exceeded our expectations.

Of course, we saw the almost immediate effect of that program, which provided housing mortgages at 9 1/2 percent interest, on the province's forestry and construction industries.

Those industries were rescued from a serious slump resulting from a depressed housing industry in the United States. Our $200 million program provided them with the needed push to avoid serious layoffs.

Just recently, Housing Minister Jim Chabot announced that, under the program, 4,734 homes for British Columbians will be completed by the end of this year. Of these, 2,048 will be owner-occupied units and 2,686 will be rental units.

Out of the total, there will be 2,272 units built on the Lower Mainland, 999 units on Vancouver Island, 540 units in the Thompson-Okanagan region, 270 units in the Kootenays, and 653 units in the northern areas of the province.

The program is, I believe, a testimony to the imagination and initiative with which this government meets problems.

The resources for the program did not come from some magic money tree in the basement of the legislature in Victoria. The money was there when it was needed for British Columbians because of prudent fiscal management practiced by our government. Because of balanced budgets and the avoidance of high interest debt, the bottom line of this government's balance sheet is such things as housing for British Columbians, jobs for British Columbians and a more secure future for them and their children.

In fact, British Columbia is one of the few bright spots in the country this year as far as housing construction is concerned.

In the first six months of this year, Metropolitan Vancouver had as many single-family housing starts as the total starts in Halifax, Ottawa, Winnipeg, Regina, Calgary and Edmonton combined.

Urban housing starts in B.C. during the first six months was 14,227 units, up 60 percent from 8,878 units during the first six months of 1979.

Predictions are that if current trends continue, the number of housing starts in B.C. in 1980 will be 34,000, a rise of 24 percent over last year. It makes British Columbia look even better when it is realized that forecasts are that the country as a whole will see only 158,000 housing starts this year.

On a different topic:

I referred last week to the hidden tax British Columbia pays as captive consumers of the products of central Canada industry.

The cost to British Columbians when they buy automobiles, appliances, and other products amounts in total to about $1 billion a year.

Interestingly enough, a study released late last week by a Harvard economist Glenn Jenkins showed that the average Canadian family paid $101 more than necessary for clothes last year. He blames the extra cost on the federal government's system of tariff and quota protection for the domestic clothing industry.

What was even more interesting was his statement that the protectionism, which adds as much as 30 percent to the retail price in some cases, falls most heavily on low-income households.

Professor Jenkins said the arguments used by the federal government for preserving these quotas and tariff barriers are difficult if not impossible to justify.

He contends that such policies serve largely to trap workers in areas of employment that provide no future. And he said the major cost of the quotas is borne by poorer Canadians, because the quotas tend to apply to less stylish clothing of lower quality.

British Columbia has argued for years that we must move towards freer trade.

This latest study provides just one more argument, but a very telling one, for British Columbia's stand.

"I'd just like you to know I'm 100 per cent behind labor and would do anything for the worker... except become one."

NATURE'S WORLD

HORWOOD

When was the last time you tried singing underwater? This seems like a ridiculous question. It would be impossible without the aid of some specialised electronic gear. Yet there is a group of animals, living in B.C., that often carry on a tune below the water line.

As you might have guessed, the animals are amphibians, specifically frogs. Many frogs are capable of singing while submerged, but one that is known to do it often is the Spotted Frog. They are found over much of B.C., seldom venturing far from the edges of lakes and streams. The single most obvious identifying feature are their salmon red legs and belly.

Spotted frogs are also slow to jump away from danger, therefore they are easily caught by children. While held in the hand, these dark green frogs may emit a squeak, which sounds much like a mouse. To squeak, they must open their mouths. The underwater calls sound different and are produced in a very different way.

At breeding time, and occasionally throughout the summer, the spotted frog's call is deep, short bass notes. Most of their calling is done while the frogs are above the water, perhaps on some vegetation or near the shore. But if the frog wishes, it can simply slip below the surface and carry on calling as if nothing is amiss.

To accomplish this, frogs have a special method of producing their sound. As the lungs deflate, air is passed over the vocal chords. The thin cords vibrate, producing a particular sound. This is not unlike many other animals which can speak or sing. What the frogs have that is unique is an air sac. This special air bag is filled as the lungs empty themselves. The sac acts like the body of a guitar, and increases the volume of the sound many times. In this way, a small frog can have a very loud call.

Spotted frogs have a poorly developed vocal sac, which explains their low call notes. Nevertheless, they still pass air from their lungs, over the chords, and into a small sac. This entire process is done with the mouth and nostrils closed. So, they can call underwater, and not be bothered by water getting into their air passages.

This curious habit of singing above or below the water can prove frustrating. On a few memorable occasions, I heard so many frogs calling that the temptation to look for one was too much to resist. Armed with my camera, flashlight and waders, I set out on what I thought would be a quick exploration.

Two hours later, I was still in the swamp. The frogs always seemed to be calling right at my feet, yet I was unable to see them. Finally I located one, almost totally submerged amongst the vegetation. It was small enough to fit in my hand, yet its calls sounded like they were amplified over a loud speaker system.

If you ever decide to go looking for croaking frogs, remember to look beneath the water as well as above it.

The second in a series of five articles on law for artists an inventor by Gordon Hardy.
When singer Sonny Bono started a suit for damages in 1969 against a Quebec record pressing company which had released his songs in French, he did so not as an enemy of bilingualism or the French language but as the indignant owner of an infringed copyright.

Bono claimed that the Quebec company had taken his popular, copyrighted songs and released them in French without his consent and without paying royalties. The songs included such titles as There Goes My Everything and Abilene.

Bono's suit came as part of an action by 12 U.S. music companies and performers who had been alerted about instances of copyright infringement by their professional representatives. Performing artists like Bono usually belong to groups called performing rights societies which regularly monitor the works of their members and collect royalties on their behalf. In Canada there are two performing rights societies, Broadcast Music Incorporated for musical entertainers and the Composers, Authors and Publishers Association of Canada, both based in Toronto.

It boils down to a question of private property. Under Canadian and international copyright laws, artistic works are seen as the intellectual property of the persons who create them. Other people cannot publicly perform, sing or reproduce them in any way unless they have the owners' permission. (There is nothing, however, to stop other people from privately performing them in their own homes.)

As with any other kind of property, the owner of a copyright can keep it, sell it, or rent it at his own discretion for his entire lifetime. After his death, it belongs to his heirs for 50 years, after which it enters the public domain. This means it is no longer private property.

Many authors, songwriters and performers choose to sell, or assign, their copyrights. Or they decide to license them to publishing or recording companies for a certain period in return for royalty payments from the companies each time the work is reproduced. The recording or publishing company will then have the right to distribute the work.

A typical royalty payment to a singer, for example, would be 2 1/2 cents per song for each record sold. What seems like peanuts can add up to a fortune when a record becomes a hit. The modest sum just mentioned would net the performer $27 thousand if a ten-song album sold a million copies.

Assigning or licensing an artistic work involves making a written legal contract between the author and the company. John Swift, a Vancouver lawyer who works in the copyright area, says, "I always urge artists not to be shy about this, to be reasonably aggressive."

"You're always presented with a form contract and there's more fine print than you can shake a stick at," he says. "Most people prefer to read the musical score rather than the fine print and they often just sign at the bottom without reading the contract. But you can't shut the barn door after the horse is gone."

Another lawyer, Eric Kagna, who is active in Vancouver's burgeoning music scene, also advises songwriters and musicians to be careful in their dealings with music publishing companies.

"Publishing is singly the most important source of income in the music industry and probably even the motion picture industry," he says. "If you are involved with publishing companies, don't do anything until you've talked to a lawyer."

A lawyer can prove indispensable, too, in protecting a copyrighted work of art from being imitated or stolen outright by someone else. Contrary to popular belief, the government plays no active role in protecting individual copyrights. Enforcement of a copyright is entirely the responsibility of the owner or the performing rights society to which he pays fees.

This means the owner of an infringed copyright must drag the infringing individual or company to court where he may sue for damages.

For example, if a songwriter discovered his song had been lifted by a singer and turned into a hit record, he could sue the singer for all the money he'd made with the hit, though Swift says he doubts the wronged songwriter would get more than a portion of it.

Swift says enforcement of a copyright can be very difficult, especially since "it's pretty hard to know if someone in Tampa Bay, Florida, is infringing your copyright."

Copyright law does allow people other than the owner of a copyrighted work to reproduce small portions of it for the purposes of study, criticism or newspaper summary. This is called fair dealing. But the line between fair dealing and plagiarism, theft of artistic works, is a vague one that the courts have often had to define.

Similarly, the courts are often dragged into disputes over the issue of derivative works, works which may appear to be imitations of copyright works. Kagna says the courts arrive at a decision in cases like these with the test question "Would a reasonable man confuse the derivative work with the other work?"

"Just browsing till my loan comes through."

There's more than one way to take a plunge at Casino Night

Blackjack is a serious business and popular too. Terrace gamblers flocked to the casino in the arena Saturday to try their luck.

Parades and parachutists among the highlights

Four parachutists jumped onto Lower Little Park Saturday. Crowds watched from the park or the arena for a good vantage point. Okanogan helicopters dropped by and dumped a bucket of water onto two unsuspecting clowns.

Employees from the Canada Employment Centre threw peanuts to the kids watching the parade.

These four runaway billboards brought smiles from the sidelines as they hopped their way among the floats in the Riverboat Days parade.

Racers do their stuff on land and in water and Dave Peace took second and Barb and Gordon Dick won third.

In the men's slalom canoe race Dave Gobel and Matt Cachia won the event. Ian and Dick Gordon came second and Cam Ford and Doug Kelk took home third.

In the mixed slalom first place went to Ian Gordon and Lori Merrell, second to Tim Tomayer and Anne Havard and third to Rilla Middleton and Dave Pearce.

The men's barrel race was won by Dave Gobel and Matt Cachia. Ian and Dick Gordon were second and Tim Tomayer and Don Mackow came third.

In the mixed barrel race Matt Cachia and Anne Havard were first, Barb and Dick Gordon came second and Rilla Middleton and Dave Pearce took third.

First place in the men's keyhole race went to Ian and Dick Gordon, Tim Tomayer and Don Mackow won second place and Doug Kydd and Bob Brisebols came third.

Winners of the mixed keyhole race were Ian Gordon and Lori Merrell, in second place were Barb and Dick Gordon.

Ian and Dick Gordon won first place in the bucket race and Matt Cachia and Dave Gobel came second. Doug Witala and John Schibbl were third.

The trophy for the top women's team went to Pat Pearce and Anne Havard. Rilla Middleton and Dave Pearce were the top mixed team and Dave Gobel and Matt Cachia were the top mens team.

At 10 a.m. Sunday the Man of the Mountain Race began. King of the Mountain this year is Randy Nelson. The hot and humid weather made running more difficult but in the end it didn't slow the contestants down. The first three to complete the run broke last year's record.

Nelson came with 38:09 time and the last runner came up approximately an hour after the race had started.

Sixty-two contestants ran the five-mile course over the Terrace Hill Sunday and only one sprained ankle was suffered.

The King of the Mountain Race was sponsored by the Skeena Valley Marathon Club.

The Terrace Centennial Lions Club did a super job of organizing two days of events and so did all the other clubs that participated in the festivities. Judging from the success of this weekend's events Riverboat Days is here to stay in Terrace and is definitely something to look forward to each year.

Son's "Perfect" Mother Lives Next Door

By Abigail Van Buren

1980 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Can a mother sue a neighbor for alienating her son's affection? I'm serious. A neighbor woman has all but adopted our 14-year-old son, Rick. She is the mother of Rick's best friend, Bob. According to Rick, she is the "neatest lady" he's ever known. She "understands" him, lends a sympathetic ear to all his troubles, and she's let him know that her home is his home. Rick has spent many nights there. He'd live there if we'd let him.

At home Rick has chores to do, which he does grudgingly, but I understand he's constantly asking what he can do to help at Bob's house. At home, Rick is criticized and restricted when necessary, but at Bob's he's treated like a guest. Naturally, Rick thinks Bob's mother is the "perfect" mother, and he keeps asking me why I can't be more like her.

I'm not jealous, Abby, but I wonder if Bob's mother realizes how hard she's making it for me. Or could she be deliberately competing with me to feed her own ego? In the meantime, how do I cope with this?

DISTURBED IN VIRGINIA

DEAR DISTURBED: Before making any accusations, examine your own attitudes honestly. Do you make time to listen to Rick's troubles? Are you overly critical and restrictive? Are Rick's friends as welcome in your home as Bob's friends are in his?

If Bob's mother scores higher than you, perhaps you should take a page out of her book. Meanwhile, your son isn't the only adolescent who thinks another mom is "neater" than his own. He's reacting normally to the guest treatment. Don't lose any sleep over it.

DEAR ABBY: My fiancé and I recently attended a wedding at a very nice hall. In fact, my fiancé was the best man.

All eyes were on a young woman who came wearing a pair of silver stretch pants that were so tight, she looked like all she was wearing was a coat of silver paint! She also wore a tight-fitting sweater and a tight wide belt! She attended the ceremony as well as the reception and wedding dinner. Believe me, she was the talk of everyone there. She would have been appropriately dressed for a disco, but certainly not a wedding!

My fiancé and I are being married soon, and we want to make sure nobody attends our wedding in that kind of a getup. My question: Would it be proper to have printed on our wedding invitations, "Ladies, no pants, please," or "Ladies, semi-formal dress required?"

TAKING NO CHANCES

DEAR TAKING: No. The only acceptable mention on a wedding invitation concerning dress is "Formal attire," "Informal attire," or "Dress, optional."

Do you hate to write letters because you don't know what to say? Thank-you notes, sympathy letters, congratulations, how to decline and accept invitations and how to write an interesting letter are included in Abby's booklet, "How To Write Letters for All Occasions." Send $1 and a long, stamped ($5 cents), self-addressed envelope to: Abby Letter Booklet, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Yesterday's Cryptquip — OUR FINESSE FOUNDERED ON FINE DEFENSE

Today's Cryptquip clue: P equals G

The Cryptquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Your Individual Horoscope

Frances Drake

FOR TUESDAY, AUGUST 12, 1980

What kind of day will tomorrow be? To find out what the stars say, read the forecast given for your birth sign.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Begin new projects. Be alert for opportunity on the job. Creativity leads to an inspired day. Watch conflicts though.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Throw yourself into your work, then do something special for relaxation. Home improvement projects favored. Evening could be romantic.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Athletics stimulate you. Partnership rapport highlighted. Decisions on domestic changes may be beneficial.

CANCER (June 21 to July 21) Best ways to make money through creativity. Avoid domestic conflicts. An invitation for a weekend trip may come.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 22) Be alert for a chance to improve income. Creative projects pay off. Romance has a touch of the unusual about it. Don't insist on your way.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22) Use fair tactics in business. Watch condition affecting weight. A new self-confidence attracts success. Enjoy a happy home life.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23) You have extra energy, but don't force your will on others. Accept an invite to an offbeat party. Self-knowledge through privacy.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You'll meet some important people at a group function. Friends are helpful. Inspired thinking brings career success. Trust intuition.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) An acquaintance may be insistent. A career opportunity to your liking may arise. Capitalize on this chance for progress.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19) A perfect day to begin or plan a trip. Happy news from a distance. The competition is keen on the career front. Be alert.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18) Now's the time to expand credit. Meet with those in a position to help. Use care in travel. Watch arguments over ethical questions.

PISCES (Feb. 19 to Mar. 20) A perfect day to further career interests. Close allies bring you benefits. Greet others with a smile and it will be returned.

YOU BORN TODAY have a creative imagination and will succeed in the arts. Your flair for self-expression is an asset in business as well. Selling, promoting, advertising, publishing and writing are some of the fields in which you'd find happiness. You're both dramatic and idealistic and would succeed in film and theater. Do not let a need for financial security keep you from taking a chance on your dreams. You're also strongly humanitarian and interested in civic improvement and the welfare of others. Birthdate of: Cecil B. DeMille, film producer; Michael Kidd, choreographer; and Cantinfla, actor.

Kicks grab a foothold

By The Canadian Press
 Minnesota handed Atlanta its 14th straight road loss as the Kicks edged the lowly Chiefs 3-2 to gain a tighter hold of a playoff spot in North American Soccer League action Sunday night. Ricardo Alonso scored two goals and Ace Ntsolengwe got one as Minnesota, 14-15, moved into second place in the National Conference Central Division with 127 points ahead of Tulsa Roughnecks at 121. If the Kicks can maintain their position in the final three games, they will automatically make NASL post-season play.

Prior to its sixth successive home win in front of 19,425 fans at Bloomington, Minn., Minnesota was battling Toronto Blizzard and Vancouver Whitecaps for the two wild card spots in the National Conference. However, the Kicks now have a shot at first-place Dallas Tornado, who are two points ahead but have a game in hand.

In the only other NASL game Sunday, Edmonton Drillers blanked Rochester Lancers 1-0.

On Saturday night, Philadelphia Fury doubled Toronto 4-2, Dallas dumped Fort Lauderdale Strikers 5-2, California Surf edged Detroit Express 2-1, Tampa Bay Rowdies upended Houston Hurricane 3-1, Chicago Sting beat San Jose Earthquake 4-1, Los Angeles Aztecs slipped by Memphis Rogues 3-2, Vancouver blanked Washington Diplomats 2-0, New York Cosmos shut out Seattle Sounders 1-0, San Diego Sockers defeated New England Tea Men 4-0 and Portland Timber topped Tulsa Roughnecks 4-2.

Minnesota took a 2-0 lead over Atlanta, 6-22, in the first half. Atlanta closed the gap on a goal by Dave Irving before Alonso scored the winner seven minutes later.

The Chiefs closed out the scoring with a goal by Keith Murphy. Henk pen. Cate's goal at 18:36 stood up as Edmonton blanked Rochester.

Pen Cate's goal, his fifth of the year, came when he beat Lancers goalkeeper Emanuel Schwartz with a low shot to the corner. Ed Kirschner and Bernie James were credited with assists.

Rochester could not put the ball past Edmonton goalkeeper Pertti Aljadespite outshooting the Drillers 2-8. Pertti made five saves to earn his seventh shutout of the year, while Schwartz stopped just one Edmonton shot.

NASL action resumes Tuesday night with San Jose at Memphis and Chicago at Houston.

'Rocks deadlock lacrosse series

By The Canadian Press
 Victoria Shamrocks edged Vancouver Burrards 15-12 Sunday night to tie their best-of-seven Western Lacrosse Association semifinal series at two games each.

In the other series, Coquitlam took a 3-0 lead by defeating New Westminster Salmonbellies 13-11 Saturday.

Vancouver had nipped Victoria 13-12 Saturday night.

Coquitlam is at New Westminster tonight, while Vancouver visits Victoria on Wednesday.

In Vancouver Sunday, Jim Lynch had six goals for the winners, who trailed 4-3 after the first period, but moved ahead 4-6 at the end of 40 minutes.

Randy Nelson is the King of the Mountain. He broke last year's record with his time of 38:09. The five-mile course over the Terrace Hill presented few problems to Nelson who had been running the course several months prior to the big race.

Rookie joins elite despite dream fading

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Mel Purcell's longshot dream fell a little short. But Purcell's finish in the U.S. Open clay court tennis tournament Sunday still put the 21-year-old rookie in rather select company.

Only one other player, Jimmy Connors in 1973, had ever reached the finals in any major tournament after having to earn his way into the starting field through a series of qualifying matches.

No one had ever done it in the U.S. Open clay court championships. Purcell breezed through three qualifying rounds last week, then stunned one opponent after another until he ran up against hard-hitting Jose-Luis Clerc of Argentina in the final.

On Saturday, top-seeded Chris Evert Lloyd won her sixth women's clay court championship with a 6-4, 6-3 victory over 15-year-old Andrea Jaeger.

"I was pleased," Purcell said, notwithstanding the 7-5, 6-3 loss to the eighth-seeded Clerc. "I played well at times, but Jose really put the pressure on me."

"I wanted to have him on the defensive, but he put on the defensive and I couldn't do anything about it. He just had too much experience for me."

Guillermo Vilas, John McEnroe and defending champion Connors all passed up the tournament this year to compete in a lucrative exhibition in southern France. Purcell, for one, was glad the big names didn't show up.

"You can't say how I would have done if they were here, because they weren't here," said Purcell. "I still would have felt confident, but it would have made it a lot tougher."

The new Association of Tennis Professionals rankings won't be out for another week so, despite his strong finish, Purcell will still have to qualify for his next tournament at Atlanta next week. He currently is ranked 155th in the world.

Clerc, a rising star on the pro tennis circuit who has turned in recent victories over Connors and McEnroe, earned $28,000 with the victory. Purcell, who turned pro on his 21st birthday three weeks ago, took home $14,000 from the $350,000 purse.

Leading 5-4 in the first set, Purcell had Clerc at set point three times. Clerc, who will be 22 next Saturday, rallied to win that set, then stretched his string to 14 consecutive points in winning the set.

Purcell took the first game of the second set on a service break, but Clerc came right back to tie it at 1-1 on another break. Clerc, seeded eighth, won three more games before Purcell, trying to save the match, made a final rally.

Clerc, successful in hitting shots by Purcell nearly every time he came to the net, wrapped up the match on his own serve.

Pirates in tie as Phillies fade

By The Associated Press
 After losing the first game of a National League baseball doubleheader Sunday with Pittsburgh Pirates, Philadelphia manager Dallas Green read the riot act to his team until his neck turned the color of Phillies Red.

But the Phillies didn't get angry — they didn't even get even.

Tamed 7-1 by the Pirates in the opener, the fading Phillies rolled over again in the second game and dropped a 4-1 decision.

The double loss spelled the fourth straight defeat in Pittsburgh for the Phillies and plunged them six games behind the leaders in the NL East — Pittsburgh and Montreal Expos.

"We didn't play good ball," Green said. "That's what hurts more than anything else."

In other NL action Sunday, Montreal turned back Chicago 7-3, Los Angeles defeated Cincinnati 7-1, San Diego edged Houston 3-2, New York beat St. Louis 4-1 and Atlanta defeated San Francisco 3-1.

In NL action Saturday, Chicago split a doubleheader with Montreal with the first 3-1 before losing 4-3. Pittsburgh defeated Philadelphia 4-1, Los Angeles dumped Cincinnati 9-4, San Francisco slipped by Atlanta 5-4, St. Louis outlived New York 9-6 and Houston bounced San Diego 9-5.

Tim Lincecum rapped a three-run double, and Jim Bibby earned his 14th victory with an eighthitter as the Pirates won the opener. Bibby, 14-2, yielded a run-scoring single to Keith Moreland in the sixth.

Mike Easler drove in two runs, and Don Robinson and two relievers combined on a six-hitter as the Pirates won the second game, extending their winning streak to seven games.

Expos 7 Cubs 3
 Bill Gullickson and Woodie Fryman combined on an eighthitter, and Ron LeFlore capped a five-run seventh with a two-run double to lead Montreal over Chicago.

Gullickson, a 21-year-old right-hander, won his fourth straight start to boost his record to 4-3, striking out seven and walking two before needing last-inning help from Fryman.

Dodgers 7 Reds 1
 Davey Lopes collected four hits, including a solo home run, and Steve Garvey belted a two-run homer, pacing Los Angeles over Cincinnati.

The victory boosted Los Angeles into first place in the NL West by a half-game over Houston.

Padres 3 Astros 2
 Tim Lincecum's two-out, ninth-inning single in the 11th inning scored Dave Winfield from third base with the winning run as San Diego defeated Houston.

Mets 4 Cardinals 1
 Bill Almon tripled home one run with two out in the fifth inning and then scored on Claudell Washington's double, triggering New York over St. Louis.

Braves 3 Giants 1
 Jerry Royster rapped a two-run, bases-loaded single in a three-run second inning, pacing Atlanta over San Francisco.

Orioles moving into contention

By The Associated Press
 Jimmy Carter can only hope he'll make out as well this week in New York as Baltimore Orioles did this weekend in American League baseball action.

As the Democrats filed into New York City for their national convention, the Orioles flew out of the city on the wings of a three-game sweep of the first-place Yanks and a ninegame winning streak.

Baltimore trails New York by only 2½ games in the AL East thanks to its comeback 6-5 victory Sunday.

"I guess I have to remind everyone that the Baltimore Orioles are the American League champions," said Earl Weaver when asked how his club could sweep three games at Yankee Stadium. "We showed why this weekend."

Elsewhere in the AL Sunday, it was Kansas City defeated Toronto 8-5, Boston edged Chicago 4-3, Minnesota beat California 5-2, and Texas doubled Detroit 4-2.

A pair of split doubleheaders saw Milwaukee open with a 5-1 triumph over Cleveland before losing 9-4, and Seattle winning 2-1 in 14 innings over Oakland before losing 6-1.

In AL action Saturday, Toronto nipped Kansas City 4-3, Baltimore doubled New York 4-2, Texas snuck past Detroit 4-3, Chicago beat Boston 5-4, Milwaukee defeated Cleveland 4-2, Oakland edged Seattle 2-1 and California pounded Minnesota 8-2.

The Orioles got some clutch hitting from Rick Dempsey and Eddie Murray and shoddy Yankee fielding in the decisive ninth inning. Baltimore had grabbed a 4-0 lead off Yankees ace Tommy John, 15-6, with Dempsey contributing a solo home run.

Royals 6 Blue Jays 5
 Dennis Leonard made 100 and George Brett continued his climb toward 400 as the Royals won for the sixth time in seven games and increased their first-place margin to 13 games in the AL West.

Mariners 2-1 A's 1-4
 Neither Seattle nor Oakland are in a pennant race, but the A's are chasing a major league mark for complete games by a pitching staff.

They got two on Sunday, with Steve McCatty going 14 innings before losing on Dan Meyer's solo homer in the opener, then Rick Langford notched his 15th straight route-going effort in the second contest.

The two complete games gave the A's six complete-game efforts from their staff in the last seven outings and 63 complete games on the season. The modern American League record is 72 by California in 1973. The modern major league record is 77 by San Francisco in 1968.

Twins 5 Angels 2
 Minnesota snapped a ninegame losing streak behind homers by Roy Smalley, Glenn Adams and Jose Morales, and Jerry Koosman's 10th win. The last Minnesota triumph came when Koosman stopped the Yankees on July 30.

Red Sox 4 White Sox 3
 A pair of home runs by Tony Perez that boosted him to 34th on the all-time list with 344, powered Boston to its win over Chicago. Bob Stanley picked up his fourth save of the week in relief of Dennis Eckersley.

Brewers 5-4 Indians 1-9
 Mike Caldwell threw a fivehitter for the Brewers' opening victory. The nightcap saw Dan Spillner turn the tables on Milwaukee by pitching a six-hitter while Alan Bannister drove in four runs.

Rangers 4 Tigers 2
 Gaylord Perry collected his 285th career triumph with ninthinning relief from Danny Darwin. It was Perry's seventh try at winning his sixth game this season.

Taylor wins

COLOGNE, West Germany (AP) — Canadian Angella Taylor continued to dominate the women's sprints during a current tour of European track meets and Rendido Nehemiah of the United States equalled this year's world's best time in the 110-metre hurdles Sunday, clocking 13.23 seconds at an international track meet.

Taylor, the 21-year-old Jamaican now living in Toronto who won both the 100 and 200 metres at a West Berlin meet Friday, was an easy winner Sunday with a time of 11.38 seconds. Jeannette Bolden of the United States finished second in 11.51 with West German star Annegret Richter third in 11.52.

The strain of travel appears to be taking its toll on the U.S. track team, but Nehemiah still is running away from the opposition on West European tracks — doing so Sunday in record time.

Nehemiah, the 21-year-old hurdler from Scotch Plains, N.J., ran his second 13.23 clocking in three days.

He ran the 110 in the same time Friday in London, and he said after the race here he was aiming at his own world record of 13 seconds.

Several members of the U.S. team, which missed the Moscow Olympics because of President Carter's decree to boycott in protest of the Soviet military intervention in Afghanistan, said the crowded schedule could be taking the edge off their performances.
